Revolutionists Said to Be Marching to Capture Venezuelan Capital—U. S. Senate Holds Executive Session—Situation to Date.

Washington, Dec. 17.—(Bulletin.)—Minister Bowen cabled the state department from Caracas that the Italian minister had left the city and had assumed charge of the Italian legation's affairs according to instructions.

NO LAND OCCUPATION.

Berlin, Dec. 17.—It is denied at the foreign office that the German squadron has orders to seize Margarita Island. No occupation of the territory of Venezuela will occur.

BLOCKADE NOT YET BEGUN.

London, Dec. 17.—In reply to a question by Sir Charles Dilke, Premier Balfour today said: "There is a controversy as to whether there is such a thing as a peaceful blockade. I personally think not. Evidently a blockade involves a state of war." Previous to this statement Premier Balfour had said that the blockade of Venezuelan ports had not yet begun.

HOUSE MORE AGGRESSIVE.

Washington, Dec. 17.—Senators have individually assured the President that while keeping a watchful eye upon Venezuelan developments they will refrain as much as possible from interfering with the President's policy. There is a more aggressive spirit displayed in the House which will likely adopt tomorrow a resolution asking for information on the subject in which event the President will send in Minister Bowen's report.

MORE TROUBLE FOR CASTRO.

Brussels, Dec. 17.—A private telegram from Caracas states that General Matos and other revolutionists have refused to unite with the government in repelling the foreign invaders. Instead, it is said, they will at once begin a new revolt against the Castro government.

BALFOUR

Repeats Assurances that England Does Not Intend to Land Troops in Venezuela.

London, Dec. 17.—Replying to questions in the House of Commons today, Premier Balfour repeated the assurances that England had no intention of landing troops in Venezuela or occupying territory. He believed, he said, that the Germans had other grievances besides those arising from financial claims.

The British government, he added, was most anxious that the blockade should be carried out with as little inconvenience to the neutral powers as possible.

Nothing further, he said, had occurred with regard to the arbitration of the claims of England and Germany.

If the seizure of the gunboats had not the desired effect, he said, it would be necessary to proceed with the blockade. This would be carried on by the fleets of England and Germany. The two nations would operate in different parts of the coast and would not act as one force.

SECRETARY HAY

Asks Germany to Define Just What Is Meant by a Peaceful Blockade.

New York, Dec. 17.—Secretary Hay has cabled to Ambassador Tower at Berlin, says the World's correspondent at Washington, to ask the German government to define for this country exactly what is meant by a "peaceful blockade." The dispatch was couched in the suavest of diplomatic language but it was insistent that Germany should reply.

This inquiry was decided upon at the cabinet meeting where it was discussed fully. Although it has not yet been put into public expression this government contends that there is no such thing as a "peaceful blockade."

If a state of war does not exist, this government will contend, at the proper time, that United States ships must be allowed to pass.

The test will come when the Red Line steamer Caracas arrives at La Guayra, probably next Saturday. If that ship goes through, and it is expected it will, other ships from other nations will also demand to go through and the "peaceful blockade" will become a farce.

If Germany insists on its rights to blockade peacefully and refuses to let American ships through, then Admiral Dewey's fleet will be sent to Venezuela to convoy the American ships through the German and English lines.

GERMANY

Declares an Official Has no Designs Against the American Monroe Doctrine.

Berlin, Dec. 17.—A prominent government official today told your correspondent that indignation is growing in government circles because of the accusation that Germany is scheming in Venezuela. He said:

"Germany has acted in full and open accord with England from the beginning. The German commodore received orders only to seize Venezuelan ships, but their sinking proved a military necessity. Germany and England continue to act with the most cordial cooperation. There are no designs on the Monroe doctrine.

"All the powers will receive notification that a blockade in Venezuela will be declared within the next few days."

CABINET COUNCIL.

Washington, Dec. 17.—There were many developments in the Venezuelan embroilment at the Capitol yesterday that were fraught with interest. The President and his Cabinet considered all phases of the trouble, and it is asserted took action to press the arbitration movement and also to make it clear to the Powers that, while this Government will not interfere at this stage of the game, it will insist that there be no infraction of the Monroe doctrine.

MORE POWERS IN THE MIX-UP.

Caracas, Venezuela, Dec. 17.—Spain and Belgium have joined Great Britain, Germany and Italy in making demands upon Venezuela for a settlement of their outstanding claims. When Senator Cullom had concluded Senator Lodge called attention to the declaration attributed to Lord Lansdowne by dispatches that there is no disposition or desire on the part of Great Britain to acquire any Venezuelan territory.

Senator Bacon, of Georgia, a leading minority member of the Committee on foreign affairs, said that on a question of this kind there was no party division, and that everybody would stand with the administration in doing what was best for the general good. There was no desire on the part of any one to embarrass those who were in control of affairs and upon whom devolved the duty of protecting American interests. The maintenance of the Monroe doctrine, he added, devolved on the whole people.

Senator Hoar said that thus far nothing had been done to cause apprehension, and he expressed the opinion that for the present the government of the United States could do nothing more than keep a watchful eye on the situation.

Senator Stewart dwelt somewhat on the bombardment of the Venezuelan fort, and said that that incident should be accepted by our government as a warning of what this country might expect whenever excuse might offer. He gave as his reason for his admonition the fact that our recent acquisition of territory had aroused the jealousy of all the European Powers, and that they might attack us any time. "Not in two generations," said he, "could we build up a navy equal to that of Great Britain, but we can strengthen our coast fortifications, and, in view of Venezuela's experience it behooves us to do so."

As there was no formal question before the Senate the matter was dropped.

THE SENATE

Holds Executive Session and Discusses the Venezuelan Situation.

Washington, Dec. 17.—A serious consideration of the Venezuelan question occupied the attention of the Senate in executive session for almost an hour.

The question came up informally almost immediately after the House was excluded. Senator Teller, disclaiming all intention of being critical, and saying he merely desired information, asked Senator Cullom, chairman of the committee on foreign relations, what information he possessed as to the Venezuelan affair. Mr. Teller, in inquiring, said that the situation is such that Senators felt that the Monroe doctrine at any time might become involved if the complications should continue.

Senator Cullom replied to the inquiry that he had no knowledge of recent events not contained in the House prints. Messrs. Bacon, Hoar, Lodge and Stewart all made remarks. In none of the addresses was anything harsh or critical said. There was a general agreement that, while the means adopted by Great Britain and Germany for the collection of their debts had been quite strenuous, they thus far had committed no infringement of the Monroe doctrine, and therefore had done nothing to which the United States could take exception.

This was the position of Senator Cullom, as it was of other Senators who spoke. Mr. Cullom said that much light as to the attitude of the administration could be obtained by consulting the correspondence between the state department and the German ambassador a year ago. He then called attention to the fact that on December 10, 1901, the representative of Emperor William had brought the matter of Venezuela's debts and her apparent indifference to them to the attention of the secretary of state. The German ambassador in his letter gave the department complete information from the German standpoint of the position of his government.

He said that for seven years Venezuela had failed to pay interest on a debt to German citizens of about $1,000,000 contracted in the construction of a railroad and that in addition there were other debts amounting to about $1,700,000 due German citizens from Venezuela which it had proved impossible to collect. He added that every known peaceful means had been tried to secure the money, and that his government, feeling that patience had ceased to be a virtue, had decided to use coercive means. It was desired, however, he said, that it should be explicitly understood that whatever steps might be taken by his country there was no desire to encroach on or interfere with the Monroe doctrine. This explanation, he added, he thought was due the United States as the only purpose of his government was to assist its people in collecting debts due them.

Secretary Hay replied December 15, 1901, saying in effect that the Monroe doctrine was not intended to shield any American nation from the payment of its honest debts, and that its purpose was to prevent the acquisition of territory by old world nations.

When Senator Cullom had concluded Senator Lodge called attention to the declaration attributed to Lord Lansdowne by dispatches that there is no disposition or desire on the part of Great Britain to acquire any Venezuelan territory.

Senator Bacon, of Georgia, a leading minority member of the Committee on foreign affairs, said that on a question of this kind there was no party division, and that everybody would stand with the administration in doing what was best for the general good. There was no desire on the part of any one to embarrass those who were in control of affairs and upon whom devolved the duty of protecting American interests. The maintenance of the Monroe doctrine, he added, devolved on the whole people.

Senator Hoar said that thus far nothing had been done to cause apprehension, and he expressed the opinion that for the present the government of the United States could do nothing more than keep a watchful eye on the situation.

Senator Stewart dwelt somewhat on the bombardment of the Venezuelan fort, and said that that incident should be accepted by our government as a warning of what this country might expect whenever excuse might offer. He gave as his reason for his admonition the fact that our recent acquisition of territory had aroused the jealousy of all the European Powers, and that they might attack us any time. "Not in two generations," said he, "could we build up a navy equal to that of Great Britain, but we can strengthen our coast fortifications, and, in view of Venezuela's experience it behooves us to do so."

As there was no formal question before the Senate the matter was dropped.

ARBITRATION.

What May Possibly Be Done by U. S. Minister Bowen.

Caracas, Dec. 17.—There is much discussion here now of the possibility of arbitration. President Castro declined to express his views at present. Persons who are close to him are unanimous in the belief that some satisfactory result through arbitration would be more readily attained if Mr. Bowen, the United States Minister, were permitted to go to Washington and there discuss the question fully and frankly with Herr Von Holleben, the German ambassador.

The feeling is prevalent that any acceptance or discussion of arbitration here while La Guayra remains menaced by the allies' guns, would be offensive to Venezuela's sense of national pride.

The minister of foreign affairs said: "I believe that Minister Bowen is better fitted for this mission than any other man by the reason of the fact that by his promptness and energy and by his tactful intercession with President Castro he has secured the permanent safety of German and English residents here and has done much to restore their confidence. He has thus won the esteem and respect of Venezuelans and Germans alike, while the English also have implicitly faith in his wisdom and integrity."

Minister Bowen, when called upon at the United States legation, declined to say whether or not the government had approached him on the subject. German residents have called to the States Zeitung a message stating that the German colony of Venezuela, in meeting assembled, has adopted the intention of praising the timely action of Minister Bowen and Mr. Russell in their behalf and expressing their appreciation. Their action is particularly significant in view of the continued harsh criticism among German residents of the precipitate departure of Herr Pilgrim-Baltazzi, German Charge d'Affaires.

REVOLUTIONISTS

Said to Be Marching to Capture the Capital of Venezuela.

Port of Spain, Trinidad, Dec. 17.—Senor Rojas, agent in this island of the Venezuelan revolutionists, denies the report that they have joined common cause with Castro against the allies.

On the contrary, according to reports received the government troops under General Voluntini have been twice defeated by the revolutionists, first at Guiria and later at El Chico, where they were completely routed and fled in disorder.

Moreover, it is reported from Alta Gracia that General Rolando, at the head of 6,000 revolutionists, is marching on Caracas with the object of capturing the city and overthrowing Castro.

The rebels in Trinidad believe that if Rolando's movement proves successful he will elect a new president who will treat with England and Germany and thus quickly end the affair.

I understand that the German warship Vineta left La Guayra for Puerto Cabello on Wednesday night upon the arrival at La Guayra of a Dutch steamer. She was at first prevented from entering the harbor by the British cruiser Indefatigable, but later, under the protection of the United States gunboat Marietta, was enabled to do so.

The captain says that he observed great activity and excitement ashore. Two thousand troops commanded by General Ferrer, had taken up a position in two forts on the outskirts of the town.

The British sloop Alert towing two Venezuelan schooners and one sloop as prizes, has arrived here.

The German cruiser Gazelle left St. Lucia last night her destination being unknown.

The British cruiser Tribune and the torpedo boat destroyer Rocket arrived at St. Lucia yesterday and have sailed for this port.

ITALY

Takes Action With the Allies Against Venezuela.

Caracas, Dec. 17.—Diplomatic relations with European Powers, it is felt, are now becoming very strained.

The Italian Minister, Signor De Rina upon receipt of orders from Rome, at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon presented an ultimatum to Venezuela and prepared to embark on the Italian cruiser Giovanni Rausan.

The government was astonished to learn that without its request the U. S. consul at Port of Spain, Trinidad, has constituted himself the representative of Venezuelan interests, and acting consul at that port has dispatched a steamship thence for Ciudad Bolivar.

Venezuela had closed her consulate there. The books, seals and archives are now in Caracas.

FROM CASTRO'S SECRETARY.

Chicago, Dec. 17.—Replying to a request of the Tribune for a statement on the gravity of the Venezuelan situation, President Castro called as follows:

"Caracas, Dec. 16.—Castro wishes to express in the name of his country his appreciation of the sympathy of the United States manifested toward Venezuela. In this foreign aggression on Venezuela he sees a threat to American interests and believes that the situation may be interpreted as a move aimed at American integrity. (Signed) 'TORRES CARDENAS' Secretary to the President."

DEWEY'S FLEET

Will Be Within a Few Hours Sail of Venezuelan Coast—The Reason Given.

Chicago, Dec. 17.—A Tribune Washington special says today: Admiral Dewey's powerful fleet will immediately be ordered south to the British Island of Trinidad, about one day's sail from La Guayra and a number of his warships will be directed to rendezvous at the Dutch Island of Curaçao, only a few hours' sail from the Venezuelan coast.

This is not intended as a hostile demonstration toward Great Britain or Germany and President Roosevelt desires it distinctly understood that the administration is confident the situation at Venezuela finally will be adjusted by arbitration and he will greatly deplore any utterance on the part of public men or the press of the country calculated to inflame the public mind.

Nevertheless it is true that Admiral Dewey will be on hand where he can keep a close watch upon the situation and see to it that none of the European nations attempt to take an inch of Venezuelan territory, but that they are on this continent simply to collect their claims.

GEFMANY'S NAVY PARTY.

Berlin, Dec. 17.—The navy party is urging an unflinching stand in Venezuela. It is stated that Germany will be allowed the leading hand in the settlement in Venezuela by the British, and naval enthusiasts see in this a grand opportunity to make a play for a larger navy.

JIM HOWARD

GRANTED NEW TRIAL TODAY AT FRANKFORT

This Will Be Howard's Third Trial for the Assassination of Governor Goebel.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 17.—Jim Howard, who was convicted and sentenced to be hanged for the alleged assassination of the late Governor Goebel, was granted a new trial today. This will be his third trial for the crime.

TOWN

Loss of Life Not Been Ascertained—The Town Had Thirty Thousand Inhabitants.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 17.—The town of Andjan in Central Asia has been practically destroyed by an earthquake. No details of the loss of life have as yet been ascertained. The town has 30,000 inhabitants.

MURDER

OF MRS. CHARLES WHEELER AT LITHOPOLIS, O.

Husband Arrested for the Crime and Now There is Talk of an Ohio Lynching Bee.

Lancaster, O., Dec. 17.—Mrs. Charles Wheeler was murdered at Lithopolis last night. Her body was discovered this morning and her husband was arrested. A heavy guard surrounds the looking at that place, where great excitement prevails and a lynching is threatened. Deputy Sheriff Callahan and Coroner Ely have left here for the scene. Wheeler is a well known Columbus manufacturer and he recently sued his wife for an alleged debt of $700. He will be brought here and placed in jail.

DRESSED UP

Sat Down and Turned on Gas Because Life Was a Burning Disappointment.

St. Louis, Dec. 17.—Because "Life was a burning disappointment," as she wrote in her last letter, Mrs. Lyde Ward dressed herself in her newest garments and committed suicide Tuesday.

She locked herself in the bathroom, turned on the gas and sat in a chair till asphyxiated. Her dead body was discovered by her son, Mrs. Ward was 32 years old and was a frequent contributor to local literature.

TIME

Turned Backward in Its Flight

Mr. Graves is a Man or an Infant

ACCORDING TO THE POSITION OF FRACTURED SKULL.

STRANGE CASE HAS DEVELOPED.

Much Interest is Taken by Doctors—Man Compelled to Learn Again to Eat and Drink.

Salt Lake Utah, Dec. 17.—An interesting case of the loss of both physical and mental powers, as the result of a fractured skull, has been discovered by Assistant City Physician Green in Alma G. Graves, a former Cincinnati man, who was badly beaten in a fight with his brother-in-law, Arthur C. Humphries, a few days ago. Graves is now in Holy Cross Hospital. The fracture, which was at the base of the skull, has had the effect of making Graves a child again. He knows absolutely nothing of the past. A few days ago he did not know how to walk to drink, or to eat, but the doctor has succeeded in teaching him to drink, and he is now learning to use his teeth in masticating food.

Four days ago, when given water, he would hold it in his mouth and then allow it to run out. He has now learned to swallow it, and today received solid food. An attempt was made to teach him to chew.

He is being taught how to walk, and Monday took a few steps, much as a child would do. He cannot talk intelligently, but prattles like a baby, which hearing words, puts them together without regard to their meaning. He became a man again for a moment this morning, when through a movement of his head the pressure on his brain was relieved and he told the doctor that he was married and had a wife and three children. Then he turned his head again and became a child once more. Just what position of the head results in restoring him his intellect the doctors have been unable to discover. Dr. Green said yesterday that he believed that Graves would ultimately recover, but that many months would be required in effecting a return to health. In the meantime he will have to be taught to do the most simple things, and will have to be constantly accompanied by a nurse. Except for this brief space of time yesterday, when the pressure on his brain was removed, Graves talks like a child and looks like one. His face has assumed a babylike expression, as well as his eyes.

The case is considered most remarkable by Dr. Green, who intends to make a study of it until the man recovers the reasoning power which made him a man and with it the ability to control his physical action. In most instances in which fracture has been at the base of the skull death has resulted in a few days or hours, and the progress being made by Graves toward recovery is considered a great victory for science. Dr. Green thinks there is a blood clot on the brain, at the place where the fracture occurred, and that it is gradually being absorbed, so accounting for Graves' apparent progress.

UMBRELLA

Used by Stranger on Boy's Head Caused Death in Cleveland Hospital This Morning.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 17.—Charles Hunter, a fifteen-year-old lad employed by the Ohio Baking company, was taken to Lakeside Hospital last night suffering from injuries from which he died this morning. He was injured night before last in an assault committed by an unknown man. Hunter was on his way home when he was accosted by a stranger. The stranger started a fight and in the melee which ensued Hunter was stabbed in the back of the head with the sharp point of an umbrella.

If Great Britain and Germany can, without a ringing protest from the United States, sail into a Venezuela port and capture a Venezuela fleet, and take possession of Venezuela custom houses to pay debts alleged to be due to private citizens of those countries, it must be concluded that the Monroe doctrine has been abandoned by the Republican administration. Those countries are treating with contempt, if not with derision, the time-honored principles and policies embodied in the justly celebrated state paper of President Monroe, which they were forced to recognize and accept by every federal administration since until British toady John Hay became Secretary of State. We have indeed fallen upon evil times when the monarchies of the old world are permitted to bulldoze and despoil American republics!

KAISER AS A HUNTER.

German Emperor Happiest When Following the Chase.
Emperor William's joking to Ambassador White about President Roosevelt's bad luck in hunting bear, while he himself was having rare good luck slaughtering game in England, calls attention to a passion which is remarkable when one considers that the emperor can use but one arm in shooting, says the Berlin correspondent of the New York World.
The emperor is one of the most ardent huntsmen in Europe. He is happiest when living in one of his six hunting lodges, where he never appears in uniform. He wears a gray green hunting suit and a soft felt hat of the same color, with a chamois beard stuck into the band. He has just completed thirty years as huntsman and sportsman and celebrated the event by sending to every gamekeeper on his numerous estates some token of his regard in presents ranging from gold watches and jeweled scarf pins to the right to shoot a hare at Christmas.
It is a pleasure to see his majesty on a hunting expedition. It is a mistake to suppose that he is spared all the fatigues of hunting or that he wishes to be spared them. He takes his stand among the huntsmen and rejects all privileges and all advantages offered him. At a recent wild boar drive he shot thirty-six out of forty which rushed past his stand, a total which was not reached by any other of the huntsmen. This touches a sore point, for unerring shots on other occasions become shocking bad shots when the emperor is present. It is court etiquette not to make a bag approaching in bulk that which the emperor makes.
For big game the emperor uses a six or an eight millimeter rifle. It seldom happens that wounded game escapes him. What he shoots either falls immediately or falls at a distance of from thirty to fifty yards. At his side he wears a dagger and on his hip a revolver in a red leather case. Behind his majesty in constant attendance is Baron von Heintze, the court huntsman, and behind the baron two rifle carriers, whose duty it is to load and hand the weapons to the emperor.

(Pittsburg Post.)
In the heat of political campaigns orators and writers have attacked with all the force and bitterness at their command the delinquencies of a party in power and responsible for the ills of a state, but never before has Pennsylvania's executive been so mercilessly arraigned as at Scranton yesterday by the simple story of a child. When he had ended his recital, with the commissioner, gathered about Chairman Gray, all boiling with indignation, that presiding judge could not restrain the comment: "It seems to me the statutes in Pennsylvania in this section are not enforced."

MR. HAHN

Whose Improvement Was Noted Yesterday, May Be Brought to His Home Tomorrow.

The improvement in the condition of Train Dispatcher C. B. Hahn, which was noted in Tuesday night's Advocate, continues, and the attending physicians are of the opinion that he can be brought to Newark Thursday on B. & O. 104.

This will be good news to Mr. Hahn's friends, especially after the alarming symptoms that developed Sunday night, which were such that almost all hope was given up for his recovery. The pneumonia tendencies which were very marked, have yielded to treatment in a most encouraging manner, and apprehension from this cause has ceased.

Mr. Armstrong, a train dispatcher and co-worker with Mr. Hahn, visited him Sunday night, and was told by the patient that the dressing of his hands occupied from 10 o'clock until 3:30, and was very painful and exhausting.

American League in New York.

New York, Dec. 17.—According to the statements made by President Brush of the New York Baseball club there is a very good understanding that the baseball war is over and that the rival factions know just how affairs stand.

Mr. Brush says that the American league can have the use of Manhattan field, for which the National has been paying out $15,000 yearly to keep them from falling into the opposition's hands.

When a National league magnate knows that his association is ready to give such a plum to a rival organization, it looks as if an understanding had been reached by the warring factions, although officially the strife is still on.

Mr. Brush has come out with the statement that the American league could rent Manhattan field. He said: "I know that several National league clubs are willing to let the American league assume the responsibilities of paying the rent of Manhattan field. So far as the New York club is concerned there would be the payatwaatwaot there would not be the least objection."

Hanon Excuses Errors.

Ned Hanlon, manager of the Brooklyn club says: "An error should not be charged against a player except for a dropped throw, a wild throw or a muffed fly. I don't believe in charging the player with an error for missing a ground ball in the infield or outfield. No ball field is perfect, and frequently when a player is properly set for a ball the sphere takes an ugly bound and goes to one side or strikes the player on the chest. I never had any use for record players. I like a player who goes after everything in sight, and I don't care how many misplays are charged against him in the season."

THE CENTRALIZED SCHOOLS OF OHIO

THE MICHIGAN COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

This is the title of the report made by the Michigan committee of investigation, consisting of Delos Fall, superintendent of public instruction for that State, and Hon. A. E. Palmer, delegate from the Michigan State Grange. These gentlemen came down into Ohio last May to find out something about our central school system, with the purpose of improving the rural schools of Michigan. Their report is the most comprehensive and interesting collection of data about our centralized schools ever published. They confined their traveling principally to the Western Reserve because, to quote Mr. Palmer, "We found there the bulk of the centralized schools, and not only those in longest operation, but those in all stages of work and organization. Ohio schools were selected because our thirty-three fully organized and 150 partially centralized townships offered the best opportunity for study, and because our conditions were similar to Michigan conditions. The committee visited ten townships in Lake, Ashtabula and Trumbull counties, besides corresponding with parties in other counties.

Centralization was first tried in Ohio in Kingsville, Ashtabula county, in 1892, a special act of the legislature being passed to legalize this movement in 1894; later special acts allowed other townships to centralize, and two years ago a general law was passed.

The committee found the greatest variety of conditions in Madison, Lake county, where centralization was begun in 1895. There were originally sixteen schools; now all except three have been centralized at five different points, the unusual size of the township being unfavorable to any other system. In the center of the township is the little village of Madison, with a thoroughly organized special district. Two adjoining sub-districts had been abandoned, and the funds used to pay a tuition of $10 per pupil, and for transportation. The center of the school population in this township is at North Madison, two miles north of Madison village, and at this point four schools were combined. A wooden building, originally a store, was purchased and used for the school house. This school now has 110 pupils, in all grades from the first to the eleventh, with a superintendent and two assistants. Three teams bring the pupils from one to three miles distant.

The committee visited many of the patrons of the school, and gathered the following testimony: "Do not hear of any opposition; the new school does not cost as much as under the old system, and at that time we had no high school."

"I formerly opposed the system signed petitions against it, urged others to do the same, went to Painesville and made application for an injunction to restrain the officers of the board from removing the school house, but now I would not go back for anything." This man lived near one of the original schools, and has two children in school.

"You could not hire me to go back to the old way." This man also opposed the plan at first.

"Last week completed the sixth year of our present school system, and I fail to find one person who says that he would prefer to have back again our old district schools. A larger per cent. of Madison pupils pass the Boxwell examination than of any other township in the county (60 percent in 1901 as against 25 percent from other townships). It very nearly does away with tardiness; it trains the child to be 'ready for the back,' preparing him thus to be on hand every morning of his after life for the duties that each day await him."

In the extreme north of the township two schools were combined by moving the school-houses to a point midway between the two, and dividing the eight grades into two groups of four grades each.

At Unionville, in the extreme eastern part of Madison township, there is a school of two teachers, to which pupils from two abandoned schools are transported. One of these schools originally had only four pupils enrolled, but when the wagon started, eight had climbed in, and were in constant attendance thereafter; another had ten original pupils and eighteen were enrolled after the wagon started.

The southern part of Madison township is isolated by the Grand river, and contained three districts, now combined into one.

The results of the committee's investigation in Madison township may be summed up thus: In place of a short school year, all schools now have nine months school. Great care is taken in the selection of drivers, who must sign a contract to furnish a covered spring wagon, with sufficient seating room; to furnish robes, and in very cold weather, an oil stove or soap stoves; to provide a strong team of safe horses; to allow no disorder or improper language; to reach the school houses not earlier than 8:45, and not later than 8:55 a. m., and to furnish bond of $100. There are now 414 grade pupils in school, as against 348 in 1894, the last year of the old system, and the percent of attendance the past year was 88 as compared with only 68 percent in 1894. The thirty-five high school pupils averaged 90 percent in attendance. There have been eighty-six Boxwell graduates during the past five years, most of whom have taken a high school course.

The cost of the centralized schools last year was $7,243; average per capita cost, $17.50; per capita cost of the Boxwell tuition for 12 pupils, $14.58; transportation cost for 150 pupils, $1,618; per capita transportation cost, $10.78; ten drivers' wages averaged $1.30 per day.

The schools are all under an efficient township superintendent, Mr. J. R. Adams. Every school in this township was visited, many of the patrons were called upon, and the drivers interviewed. The North Madison school is less expensive than under the old system; also the school south of Grand river. Others testified that no change in expense had been noticed, but all were enthusiastic in agreeing that much better schools are the result.

KINGSVILLE, TRUMBULL CO.

The Michigan committee next visited the Kingsville schools, which were the first to be centralized in Ohio, having obtained permission in 1892 by a special act of the legislature. Here was found another instance of partial centralization, South Kingsville having a thoroughly organized, equipped and efficient school of twelve grades, including a fine high school of 74 pupils. The school has a fair library, and fairly good physics apparatus. The superintendent is a graduate of Oberlin College and receives $1,200 per year, the high school principal receives $50 per month, and the grade teachers $30 per month. The graduating class this year numbered thirteen. The high school course of five terms in algebra, four in geometry, three in physics, three in general history, nine in Latin, two in botany, and the usual work in English physical geography, American history, rhetoric, literature, higher arithmetic, civics and grammar. Two flourishing literary societies hold public monthly meetings, and have contributed very distinctly to the development of pride in good literary work. These societies have raised more than $150 for the purchase of books and apparatus, for the school.

The report does not state how many sub-district schools were combined into this South Kingsville school, but we learn from an article in the July, 1899, Arena, that at first only three districts were included, but later a fourth asked to come in and was received. Up to this year only two districts (and these remote) in the south part of this township have maintained separate schools, but at the April election this year these two, by a vote of six to one, decided to abandon their schools and send their pupils to the South Kingsville school. The opposition came almost invariably from those who have no children to send or from those who do not care about educating their children. Only one man who has pupils to send, made objection, says the Michigan committee's report, and his protest was that his five year-old son is too young to ride so far.

The route contracts are let to the lowest responsible bidders, the board reserving the right to give contracts to those fit to be entrusted with the care of the pupils. The driver has to sign a contract similar to that required of the Madison drivers. The price paid has been about $1.15 per day. The Arena article states that more bidders than contracts have always appeared, but a letter from a patron, published in the Michigan committee's report, asserts that some difficulty is experienced in obtaining desirable drivers, with good, strong teams, and light, comfortable wagons, at the price paid now. Each wagon carries from 18 to 20 pupils.

The results of the centralization of the South Kingsville schools are summed up thus: Very little absence, attendance in some districts increased 50 to 100 per cent., practically no tardiness, more interest and greater progress in studies; better literary advantages, better teachers, better salaries; better health and greater comfort of the children.

The North Kingsville section maintains a special district, where the pupils are not transported, and only the first six or seven grade studies are taught, and these in an ungraded school. The school lacks the interest and enthusiasm of the centralized school, and the citizens are generally agreed that it ought to be included in the union school, but jealousy between the two villages prevents a consolidation.

In the case of State of Ohio vs.
John McKenna and John Kendall, convicted heretofore of assault with intent to rob, the Court overruled the motions in arrest of judgment and for a new trial, and sentenced the defendants to the Ohio Penitentiary at hard labor, but not solitary confinement, for a period of ten years each.

In the case of Ohio vs. John Hen-ma J. Dryer, et al., an action for partition of real estate, judgment on de-murrer to second defense of amended effect of this decision is that the heirs of Wm. C. Maholm are held to be the owners of the real estate which was devised to him in tail under the will of his father, James Ma-holm, notwithstanding the fact that Wm. C. Maholm sold and conveyed said real estate during his life time.

GRANVILLE

POSTOFFICE ROBBERS SECURED
ABOUT $1000.

Bundle of Postoffice Papers Found Near Union Station—No Further
Clue to the Robbers.

Granville, O., Dec. 17.—The looting of the postoffice by burglars on Monday night is still the principal topic of conversation here. There are no new developments beyond the fact that it has been ascertained that the loss will amount to nearly $1000. The postoffice inspector has failed to arrive as yet, but is expected at any time. Another bundle of Granville postoffice papers was found near Union Station by Mr. Carl Price. Among the papers was the insurance policy on the residence of Postmaster Austin. The finding of these papers and others near Ottville proves most conclusively that the trail of the robbers led towards Columbus.

One registered package of $149, some postoffice money amounting to $15.90 and some private funds of Postmaster Austin were stolen. This money, together with the postage stamps makes the loss almost a thousand dollars.

SOUR STOMACH

(Acid Dyspepsia.)

Now Recognized as the Cause of Serious Disease.

Acid Dyspepsia, commonly called heartburn or sour stomach, is a form of indigestion resulting from fermentation of the food. The stomach being too weak to promptly digest it, the food remains until fermentation begins, filling the stomach with gas, and a bitter, sour, burning taste in the mouth is often present. This condition soon becomes chronic and being an every day occurrence is given but little attention. Because Dyspepsia is not immediately fatal, many people do nothing for the trouble.

It is now well known among able physicians that the whole constitution is gradually undermined and weakened, that the nerves and vital organs are seriously affected by any form of dyspepsia. This is plain, as every organ, every nerve in the body is nourished by the blood and the blood is replenished from the food digested. If the food is properly digested the blood is pure, the nerves steady, but if supplied from a sour, fermenting, decaying mass the blood is vitiated, poisoned and the result is shown in sleeplessness, lack of energy, poor appetite, nervousness. Every trifle is magnified and the dyspeptic sees nothing but the dark side of everything.

Within a recent period a remedy has been discovered prepared solely to cure dyspepsia and stomach troubles. It is known as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and it is now becoming rapidly used and prescribed as a radical cure for every form of dyspepsia.

It is not claimed to cure anything except dyspepsia and stomach weakness in its various forms, but for this it has been shown to be unequalled.
The eminent specialists, Reid and O'Leary, have recently stated that they considered Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets an unfailing specific for disorders of the digestive organs, and the remarkable cures made in cases of long standing dyspepsia prove that this remedy has extraordinary merit.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have been placed before the public and are sold by druggists everywhere at 75 cents per package, and while it promptly and effectively restores a vigorous digestion, at the same time is perfectly harmless and will not injure the most delicate stomach, but on the contrary by giving perfect digestion, strengthens the stomach improves the appetite and makes life worth living.

A SERIOUS CASE Of Catarrhal Dyspepsia Cured.

Leonard F. Verdery.

LEONARD F. VERDERY, Real Estate and Renting Agent, of Augusta, Ga.,
writes:

"With many others I want to add my testimonial to the wonderful good Peruna has done me. I have been a great sufferer from catarrhal dyspepsia. I tried many physicians, visited a good many Springs, but I believe Peruna has done more for me than all of the above put together. I feel like a new person.
I have taken the Peruna and Manalin together and always expect to have a bottle in my home."—LEONARD F.
VERDERY.

Congressman Dwiner of West Virginia.

Congressman B. B. Dwiner, from Wheeling, West Virginia, in a letter written from Washington, D. C., says:

"I join with my colleagues in the

A BOY'S LOVE.

The Symptoms That Mark His First Consciousness of Woman.

"It is deeply and touchingly significant of the uplifting influence of woman over man that the first heart throb of a boy is always accompanied by abstruse symptoms," says Dorothy Dix in Ainslee's. "The earliest indication that a masculine creature gives of susceptibility to the fair sex is when he first voluntarily washes behind his ears. Up to that time his morning bath, except upon compulsion, has only described a small circle, taking in his eyes, a segment of his cheeks and his chin. A thorough scrubbing he has regarded as one of the tortures of the inquisition, combing his hair he has looked upon as a foolish waste of time that might have been spent on tops and marbles, while brushing his clothes and shoes has seemed a contemptible truckling to the effete customs of society that was unworthy of an intelligent human being.

"Suddenly all this is changed. Some morning the boy appears abnormally clean. He develops a mania for scented soap. His ears are beyond reproach, and if he has the making of a lover in him he begins to manœuvre his nails. He becomes critical about collars and neckties. His family say, 'How Tommy is improving!' and his mother congratulates herself that her lectures are bearing fruit at last.

"In reality it is the first premonition of love—vague, inarticulate, intangible, but unmistakable. No man ever realizes his defects until he sees them reflected in feminine eyes. Men do not dress up for each other; but for woman's opinion they would still be going about in comfort and the aboriginal blanket. The silk hat and dress coat are a daily offering on her shrine, and Tommy's newly awakened desire to fix up is simply his first consciousness of woman. He does not understand its portentousness, and he may still outwardly scorn little girls, but for him the die has been cast. The disturbing and compelling influence of woman has entered into his life."

WHEN THE DOOR OPENED

[Copyright, 1931, by Z. A. Norris.]

Before Reynolds had had time to ring the door opened and a girl stood within, like a picture in a frame, a young girl in white, with yellow hair. At her waist and throat were silks of blue, the color of her eyes.

"Oh!" she smiled. "I beg your pardon, I was just going out. You came to see Elizabeth, didn't you? Will you enter? I will call her."

He entered, walking straight forward, but with eyes turned toward the girl, following the glimmer of her sash and skirts as she ran, swift footed, up the stairs to Elizabeth's room.

A far door opened and shut, opened and shut once more, and other foot-steps descended the stairs. They ran about the hall and into the room. Elizabeth stood before him—Elizabeth, tall and dark haired and beautiful, putting a slender hand on his shoulder, looking up into his face and saying:

"I've been waiting for you. I thought you were never coming. Let me take your hat and your gloves. Sit down here by me. It seems an age since I saw you—an age, an age!"

He sat down by her. He took her hand. He separated her fingers in his old way, toying with them. He looked at them absently, one at a time, at their tapering, at the tender pink of the nails. By and by, "Who was it opened the door?" he asked and waited, eager eyed, for her answer.

"The little girl? It was Bertha, my cousin. She is just home from school. She is a pretty little girl, isn't she?"

His eyes took on a look of remembering.

"Yes," he answered after a long time; "she is—a very pretty little girl."

A week later Elizabeth sat in her room waiting. His usual hour of coming was half after 8. It was now 8.

Presently, rising, she moved about, arranging the flowers in a vase, touching a picture into place and straightening out the gilt edged books lying here and there and everywhere. She sat down again, thinking those long thoughts of youth that go to fill up the hours of waiting. The minute hand pointed to half after 8. The clock struck with a tiny tinkle. She arose; a second time and walked up and down.

Once more she stood before the little clock. Nine, almost!

Perhaps something had detained him. Perhaps, after all, he would not come. She crossed the room; she opened the door; she trailed down the stairway silently, not with intention, but from force of habit. Absorbed in her own disappointment, she was within ten steps of the door before she saw him standing there with her little cousin, laughing lightly, both of them, their faces aglow with the flare of the light in the hall silhouetted against the night.

He looked up—the girl also. "I was just coming to tell you," she said, showing two rows of small white teeth in a radiant smile, "that Mr. Reynolds was here."

Elizabeth began to look upon her cousin with new eyes. She perceived the beauty of her through the magnifying lorgnette of his regard. She had thought her a child, removed one stage from the playing with dolls. She found her a woman, well into the stage of commencing to play with hearts, and skillfully. She observed the slim height of her, the charming roundness of her, the delicate curve of cheek, the length of eyelash, the calm young blueness of eye.

Then she took to long hours of practice. The keys of the piano sometimes vibrated with a sound like a sob.

Her nights were divided into two varieties—white nights when she expected him and dark nights when she did not.

That was a black night. She was not expecting him. For the passing of the interim she had gone to a neighbor's house, visiting a friend. It was late when she came back along dewy walks on either side of which flowers nodded sleepily. Above the house the new moon peeped, a golden crescent dangling from the twinkling of a star.

The house was hushed, dark. One light only burned in the hall, and near the piano in the long parlor, through whose open windows wafted redolent breaths of the nodding flowers, another. Glowing electric tulips, these lights were, burning on slender stems.

The hall door was open. Entering, she hung her wrap on the rack and started toward the parlor. Often it happened that upon those dark nights of hers she was able to leave part of her loneliness upon the piano keys.

She halted on the threshold, her foot-steps arrested by voices—cooing, whispering voices that she knew—his and hers.

Turning falteringly, very softly, for fear they would hear, she commenced her ascent of the stairs. She lagged suddenly. It was as if she had run a long way and was tired. Nevertheless she set her face steadfastly forward, not daring to look back.

Never had the stairs seemed so many, so endless, so high. It was as if she tried to climb to heaven, leaving heaven behind.

At length she reached her door. She opened it. The emptiness of the room was like the emptiness of a cave.

She crossed it in the dark and stood at the window, looking out. From the dusk of the green, sweet garden the clumps of daisies smiled up at her; dangling from the twinkle of the star the moon hung yellowly above, and below the lone sad cat, the color of the night, paced the gray of the garden wall softly, slowly, undulatingly and autistically.

NEW VOTING MACHINE

An Automatic Device For Casting All Ballots.

VOTE OF EACH SEX KEPT APART.

Kansas City Inventor Claims His Apparatus Is Applicable Under All State Laws—A Separate Door Provided For Women—Other Features of the Contrivance.

L. R. Winslow of Kansas City, Mo., has on exhibition in the Fullerton building at St. Louis a voting machine which he has patented, says the Globe-Democrat of that city. Mr. Winslow brought his machine to St. Louis because he had heard much of elections there and thought some automatic device might be needed.

The appearance of the machine, with the booths which constitute a part of the contrivance, is quite attractive. Hardwoods, highly polished, are used. Steel, aluminum and other rigid materials are employed in the construction of the machine proper, which in its working very much resembles a big cash register or an adding machine. The machine registers and counts automatically as cast the vote for each candidate; it also registers and counts the votes for or against any special proposition, such as a constitutional amendment, etc. It counts and registers as cast the total number of votes cast by voters of each party and at the same time shows the total number of votes cast by all who have entered the booths and have voted. Visible registers at all times show just how many have entered the booth, how many have voted, and, to enable the separation of man or woman, two separate dials present the figures as to each.

The inventor claims that his machine can be readily and quickly adjusted for class voting, for minority representation voting, cumulative voting and for restricted voting, where, as in Kansas, certain officers are voted for by the women, while they are not permitted to vote for certain others, such as presidential electors, congressmen, etc. As each voter enters the booth a lever unlocks the keys, which are operated by the voter "cash register fashion"—by pushing them. When a key is pushed, all other corresponding keys on opposing tickets become locked. The key, once pushed in, is also locked until the next voter enters the booth. This prevents the repeating of a vote. To guard against possible manipulation, when a key is touched all the others on the same row become locked, but the registering apparatus does not operate until the whole of the ticket has been voted and the voting key itself been locked by the entrance of another voter. The women enter by a door provided for them, and their vote likewise is kept apart and registered separately from those cast by the men.

In order to facilitate the casting of a ballot the straight party tickets are arranged side by side, and each has a separate color, which can be followed easily by the voter, who would find it next to impossible to make a mistake. However, a voter may "scratch" a ticket, and for this is provided an extra row, with blank slips for convenience.

Mr. Winslow claims that unless the machine is intentionally injured by a voter while in the booth it cannot fail to work. Heavy penalties are indicted for a misdemeanor of this character. The inventor has spent ten years perfecting his machine.

JOKE ON THE PRESIDENT.

Dr. Hill Poked Fun at Him For Failing to Shoot Bears.

Among those who delivered addresses of welcome at the assembling in Washington the other day of the first international sanitary conference of American republics was Assistant Secretary of State Hill. In the course of his remarks, says the New York Times, Dr. Hill pointed out that disease is an enemy that threatens to destroy us and that man has exterminated the grosser and visible enemies.

"Bears, for instance," he added, "have been so completely exterminated that the president of the United States on a recent hunting trip was unable to find any of them and was obliged to return to the White House without a shot."

What a Blind Man Saw.

The passing of Chaplain Milburn removes a picturesque figure from congress, says a Washington dispatch to the New York Tribune. "The blind chaplain," as he was known throughout Washington, has made his personality felt on both sides of the Atlantic. An American who was spending a summer wandering idly through London describes his astonishment at entering a chapel in Holloway road and seeing Chaplain Milburn in the pulpit. "The sight of the familiar face and figure was a joyful one," said the American in telling the story, "but I think my greatest surprise was when I listened to the subject of his talk. 'What I saw of England,' I had been doing England in a half thorough fashion myself, but it was a revelation to learn what this blind man had 'seen' in England, and even the natives were astonished."

A Freight Car Experiment.

The Illinois Central Railroad company is said to be conducting a series of experiments with a freight car, the trucks of which are fitted with ball bearing journals. These, it is claimed, make the car run so easily that a single person can move it. If they prove practicable, trainroads can easily be doubled and hauled with the same power now used.

HIS MYSTERIOUS FRIEND

[Original.]

Ernest Trevor was pacing back and forth nervously in his office. He had bought stocks by depositing with a broker 10 per cent of their value, and as they had declined 10 per cent he had been called upon for another 10 per cent. If it were not forthcoming, the stocks would be sold, and he would not get the benefit of a subsequent rise that would probably occur. In fact, he would be ruined.

Trevor was engaged to the daughter of a wealthy man who had given his consent to the marriage on Trevor's representation that he was worth $100,000. This was true at the time the representation was made, but Trevor, having been caught in the decline of stocks, was now worth nothing. Nevertheless, as he had no more funds, he wrote a note to his broker to that effect and consenting to the sale of his security. This he did with a heavy heart since he considered it equivalent to the breaking of his engagement.

He was sealing the note when a messenger entered with a communication from the cashier of the bank where he kept his funds. He sighed as he tore off the envelope, knowing that his account was overdrawn and expecting a notification to that effect. To his astonishment the note read as follows:

"We have to notify you that the sum of $20,000 has been placed to your credit in this bank."

Mr. Trevor's emotions may be better imagined than described. Was it a mistake of the bank? Had the wrong person been notified? He stepped to the telephone and called up the cashier.

"Who placed $20,000 to my credit?" he asked.

"Hold the wire."

In a few minutes came the reply.

"The check was payable to Martin Copeland, who made it payable to you."

"You have made a mistake. I don't know such a man. Who is he?"

There was another request to hold the wire, and in five minutes the information came that the bank did not know Mr. Copeland and had no occasion to know him since the check had been certified by a bank that was perfectly good. This meant that the bank, and not Mr. Copeland, was responsible.

"Thank you. Goodbye."

Some one must have blundered. The money could not possibly come from any friend, for there was no one among those devoted to Trevor who could or would risk such an amount for friendship. Nevertheless, since he had honorably notified the bank of the probable error, he had done all that could be expected of him and, with plenty of money to his credit, did not propose to let a fortune slip through his fingers. He tore up the note he had written to his broker and wrote another, inclosing a check for $5,000. He stayed in his office till 5 o'clock, expecting to get a notice from the broker that the bank had after all refused payment, but no notice came, nor did any ever come. Later he was obliged to send another check for margins for $5,000, which was also paid. When the market turned, Trevor plunged on the remaining $10,000 to his credit, and in the end he not only regained what he had lost, but trebled it. He then sent a check for $20,000 to his bank for Martin Copeland, asking the cashier to let him know what became of it. He was informed that his check had been sent to the bank on which the original check to him had been drawn and had not been returned. It was supposed that Mr. Copeland had received it.

The evening after Trevor had sent the check to Mr. Copeland he called at the house of his fiancée, Miss Eleanor Buckley, to take her to the opera. He found Mr. Buckley and his daughter standing over a number of necklaces, bracelets and other ornaments from which the gems had been extracted and were missing. There was a scowl on the father's face, and the daughter was evidently troubled. Trevor was informed that Mr. Buckley, noticing that his daughter was going out without her jewels, had asked where they were. The result was the production of a good deal of gold, but no jewels. For this she gave no explanation.

At this juncture a servant entered and handed Miss Buckley a package. She opened it and displayed the missing gems.

"How's this?" exclaimed Mr. Buckley. "Those are the identical jewels on which I recently lent $20,000. The request for a loan came while stocks were tumbling, and, though I don't lend on jewels, at that time they were better than any securities offering."

The secret was out. Miss Buckley, knowing that her lover was in financial difficulty, had sent her jewels to her father through an acquaintance whom neither knew and placed the money borrowed on them to Trevor's credit.

Mr. Buckley frowned. He had heard that Trevor was a loser in stocks and feared that his fortune had disappeared.

"My consent," he said, "was gained on condition of your being worth a certain amount."

"Thanks to the loveliest girl in the world, I am worth three times that amount. Had the check not been forthcoming I would have been ruined."

This was an argument the capitalist could understand, and his frown turned into a smile. Going to his daughter, he kissed her affectionately and cradled Trevor by the hand.

Miss Buckley went to the opera without her jewels, but she was told so often during the evening that she was herself the most precious jewel in the world that this didn't matter. After the opera, when they were alone, her lover gave her a kiss for every jewel she had hypothecated, repeating the process as many times as there were jewels.

Steele-Miller Trial Is Now On

CLUE TO BOOK IN WHICH THE NAMES WERE WRITTEN.

AND HOW IT WAS OBTAINED.

Fearing Steele Wasn't Dividing Fairly, Mrs. Miller Asked Humane Agent to Take Case.

Columbus, O., Dec. 17.—Charles C. Rankin of Newark, and Harry H. Baird, ex-county commissioner, of Pataskala, were both in the jury box for the second trial of the celebrated Steele-Miller conspiracy case but both were excused from service by peremptory challenge of the state. J. H. Rogers of Hanover, was a member of the jury which disagreed at the first trial of the case last week.

The jury which is now hearing evidence in the case consists of the following named men:

R. C. Curtis, salesman, Ross county. Samuel Gamble, grocer, Coshocton county.

Gideon Clarke, horse breeder, Madison county.

W. A. Barrett, miller, Ross county. John England, stock raiser, Ross county.

Abram Emory, contractor, Muskingum county.

William Lyons, merchant, Vinton county.

J. A. Lippencott, hotel man, Belmont county.

W. E. Harris, bank cashier, Logan county.

William T. Bell, farmer, Pickaway county.

A. E. Silcott, retired merchant, Fayette county.

Thomas Anderson, farmer, Knox county.

Humane Society Agent Russell Spencer was a new witness in the case. He stated that in January or February Mrs. Miller called upon him to arrest her husband for failure to support their minor children. He had heard something of the letters that had been sent out, and asked her if it was with her consent. She admitted that such was the case.

She also admitted to him that she had been guilty of acts of infidelity but insisted that it was his conduct that drove her to ruin. With much bitterness she declared that he was then sharing in the proceeds of the collections that were being made.

"Isn't Mr. Steele your attorney?" Spencer asked her upon hearing this statement.

"I thought he was," she replied, "until I found that the money was being divided into three parts, and that I was getting the smallest."

She insists that her husband, as stated, was getting his share of the money. Spencer stated that Mrs. Miller had asked no financial assistance of the Humane Society, but simply had asked that her husband be made to help support their minor children. He called upon her attorney, L. B. Tussing, and warned that gentleman to beware of her and her husband, as they were blackmailers. Later he notified Postmaster Rownd of Mrs. Miller's statements concerning the letters and the division of the money. Mr. Rownd notified Postoffice Inspector Oldfield and the machinery of the detective branch of the department was set in motion, with the result of the indictments being found.

Spencer testified that he saw the famous red book, in which the names of 52 men were written by Mrs. Miller. She offered to read him the list, but he declined to hear her statement. It was his knowledge of this memorandum that caused Oldfield to get possession of it at the time of Mrs. Miller's arrest. It has since figured prominently in the hearing of the case. It developed on his examination by the defense that he had been subpoenaed last week by the Government, but he could not explain why he had not been called. Attorney Tussing who is engaged in this case, was evidently surprised at Spencer's state-

A MIGHTY Fortress IS OUR GOD

By Martin Luther

DURING his life of contention with the Roman Catholic church Martin Luther, the famous reformer, found time to translate the Bible and to write numerous epistles, pamphlets, hymns, etc. His most famous religious song, given below, the German title of which is "Eine Feste Burg Ist Unser Gott," was written in 1527. It has been translated many times. Our version is that of F. H. Hedge.

A MIGHTY fortress is our God,
A bulwark never failing;
Our helper he amid the flood
Of mortal ills prevailing;
For still our ancient foe
Doth seek to work us woe;
His craft and power are great,
And armed with cruel hate,
On earth is not his equal.

Did we in our own strength confide,
Our striving would be losing;
Were not the right man on our side,
We should go down like dross;
Dost ask who that may be?
Christ Jesus, it is he,
Lord Sabaoth his name,
From age to age the same,
And he must win the battle.

And though this world, with devils filled,
Should threaten to undo us;
We will not fear, for God hath willed
His truth to triumph through us;
The Prince of darkness grim—
We tremble not for him;
His rage we can endure,
For lo! his doom is sure,
One little word shall fell him.

That word above all earthly powers—
No thanks to them—abideth;
The spirit and the gifts are ours,
Through him who with us sideth;
Let goods and kindred go,
This mortal life also;
The body they may kill;
God's truth abideth still,
His kingdom is forever.

ment as to the warning given him, and tried to shake the witness as to that incident, but failed. He was the only new witness produced by the government, but it virtually made a new one out of Detective Mahoney. After he had repeated his testimony of last week as to making a settlement for Ed Gochenbach, agent for the Wiedemann Brewing Company, he was asked if Mrs. Miller had ever endeavored to engage him in a professional capacity. The attorneys for Mr. Steele made a hard fight against the introduction of his testimony, but the Court allowed it to be given as against Mrs. Miller. Mahoney declared that Mrs. Miller had come to him and asked him to visit the men on a list she handed him. She said that she was satisfied that Mr. Steele was not dealing fairly with her. Her purpose in getting Mahoney's services was to have him call upon the men on the list, find out how much they had paid Steele and report the amounts to her. As she was unable to pay him Mahoney did not accept the employment.

This was after he had become acquainted with the transactions in the case. Mahoney's testimony was later ruled out because he could not give the names of the men upon the list handed by Mrs. Miller.

The government has about 40 witnesses to examine but expects to finish its side of the case tonight.

Awful Experience.

Harrodsburg, Ky., Dec. 17.—Silas Remy, a trapper of Mercer county, had a horrible experience on Chaplin river. While trying a coon trap his hand was caught. He sent his little son home to get a pair of pincers so he could release himself. The boy fell over a cliff and was unable to bring aid. Meanwhile the river began to rise and Remy was in danger of drowning. Finally to save his life he saw his middle finger off above the middle joint with a dull knife. Five minutes later another trapper came along and found him exhausted.

POISON

In Chocolates Which Miss Baker Ate and Police Claim to Have a Clue.

La Porte, Ind., Dec. 17.—La Porte county has a case which promises to rival the Molineux case in New York. Miss Matilda Baker, of New Buffalo, Mich., a maid in the family of E. G. Ford in Michigan City, Saturday evening received a box of chocolates from a small boy who called at the house and delivered them to her at the door. She ate several and was almost immediately taken deathly ill. A physician was called and he diagnosed the case as one of arsenical poisoning, and at once traced the poison to the chocolate creams. The woman lingered between life and death until Tuesday, when it was announced that she would probably recover. The police claim to have a clue. Vigilant search is being made for the lad who brought the box to the house.

CHRISTMAS GIFT OF A MILLION FROM ROCKEFELLER

For Chicago University—The School Will Pension Retired Teachers in the Near Future.

Chicago, Dec. 17.—President Harper of the University of Chicago, at the convocation exercises announced the gift by John D. Rockefeller of another million dollars to that institution. Other gifts were also announced, making the aggregate $1,726,000.

President Harper advocated the pensioning of retired professors and officers of the university, but said that the details of the plan would have to be considered further before any steps in that direction could be taken.

The resignation of Major H. A. Rust, as comptroller of the university was also read at the convocation.

Among the new features planned is an aquarium of large proportions, to be established on the grounds.

The announcement of the Christmas present from Mr. Rockefeller came as the climax to the Christmas convocation statement. A large audience in Studebaker theatre had followed the president through the reading of a long statement. Finally, reaching the Rockefeller paragraph, President Harper said:

"In addition to the other gifts mentioned, I am authorized to announce that the founder of the university has given the University of Chicago within the last four days, his customary Christmas gift of $1,000,000, to be treated as an endowment fund."

The first official discussion of separate instruction was made by the president, who said that the possibility of eliminating co-instruction from co-education was definitely provided at the founding of the university.

The convocation address was delivered by William Henry Maxwell superintendent of the New York city schools who took for his theme the "American Teacher." Mr. Maxwell made a telling plea for higher standards and ideals in the training of the modern teacher.

SOUTH AFRICA'S FUTURE.

Bright Outlook Predicted For Its Trade by Mining Engineer.

Frederick P. Hale, a mining engineer, who has recently returned from South Africa, declared at the Holland House, in New York, the other day to a reporter of the New York Tribune that no section of the globe would develop so rapidly relatively in the next five years as South Africa. "The end of the war means the beginning of another war—a commercial war, with England, Germany and America struggling for trade. A commission recently sent by the South African board of trade to investigate conditions in South Africa made the prediction that the Rand alone would require within the next five years mining machinery costing $150,000,000. Everything else is in proportion. The Americans and the Germans are making great headway in this trade rivalry, especially in the way of bridges, steel rails, structural steel and like equipment. Americans have a large trade. They furnish the best stuff, do it quickly and give a better price than the English can give."

"Of course England has the call, and many prefer to wait until they can get stuff from England. The English machinery is, as a rule, heavier, more compactly built and more rugged than the American machinery, and for this reason is preferred by some, but the Americans are getting enormous contracts, and once in the field they stick. The Germans are a good third and have shown remarkable progressiveness and keen trade ability."

SAFEGUARD FOR HUNTERS.

Maine Physician Suggests the Wearing of Blue Clothing.

Shooting accidents have been so numerous in the Maine woods this season that there is talk of further legislation to punish the careless gunners and also prevent so far as possible human beings from being mistaken for deer, says a Bangor special to the New York Tribune. It is suggested by Dr. Ford of Milo, who has had much experience in the woods, that all hunters or others going into the game regions be compelled to wear blue clothing, blue being a color easily recognized and one that bears no resemblance to the coat of any animal in the woods.

Many hunters make the serious mistake of wearing bright red sweaters under the impression that the vivid color can be seen at a long distance. The fact is that red or any bright color blends with the foliage in autumn and, softened by distance and haze, much resembles the coat of the deer. Dr. Ford intends to circulate a petition asking for the passage by the next legislature of a law making it compulsory for all persons going into the game regions to wear blue clothing.

"Would ye now?" puff, puff, puff. "Ye've got to wear the worst!" puff, puff, puff. "I'd take ye!"—Lippencott's Magazine.

Reaches New York From Africa

Three Cases Treated at Swinburne Hospital.

SAID TO BE NO DANGER OF THE DISEASE SPREADING.

SHIP IS SENT AGAIN TO SEA

To Discharge Sand Ballast and Water Taken Aboard at Durban—All Precautions Taken.

New York, Dec. 17.—Three cases of bubonic plague are under treatment in the Swinburne Island hospital at quarantine. The sufferers are the first and second cooks and the second steward of the Prince line steamer Saxon Prince, which arrived from Durban, South Africa, Monday, when on inspection of the crew, three were found to be ill.

A thorough examination of the patients convinced Health Officer Doty that they had all the symptoms of the plague and they were taken to Swinburn Island where cultures were made. The result of the examination confirmed the diagnosis made at the inspection.

The first man taken ill, according to the reports of Captain Jamison, was the second cook. He first complained to the captain when the ship was out two weeks. As the steamer left Durban on November 9, this place the reported illness on November 23. The other two cases appeared about two weeks ago. The history of the cases, make a complete chain of infection from the time of the exposure of the first man at Durban to the time of arrival. The crew were ashore at Durban, and it is undoubtedly there that the disease was contracted.

The first patient is convalescent but the other two are still under treatment. All three men slept together in a small compartment. The total number of the crew is 31. There are five passengers aboard, a woman and four children.

The steamer will be sent to sea to discharge the water and sand ballast taken on board at Durban. She will then return to quarantine when the passengers and crew will be transferred to Hoffman Island where they will be held for ten days for observation. The effects of all will be thoroughly disinfected and the steamer will be washed and disinfected in every part before being released. Dr. Doty says that there is no danger of a spread of the plague as the whole matter is well in hand.

"We have been at work for a long time," said Dr. Doty, "in anticipation of the possible appearance of bubonic plague from South African ports. All steamers from those ports, since the reported presence of plague there have been retained at quarantine. The crews have been taken on board the disinfecting steamer, stripped, bathed and examined for symptoms of the plague and their clothes and sleeping quarters have been disinfected. This course has been strictly pursued and has at last resulted in the detection of cases of the disease."

RECITAL
AT TRINITY PARISH HOUSE FRI. DAY EVENING.
A Fine Entertainment Was Given by Miss Horr, Reader, and Reynolds Family.

The recital given Tuesday night at Trinity Parish House under the auspices of the Altar Guild, was very well attended and those who were present were highly entertained by the rendering of a most excellent program, every number being a feature that called forth generous applause.
Miss Nell Ames Horr, the reader, fully sustained her great reputation, which preceded her, and her selections were made with discriminating care, so as to show to the best advantage her versatility. Narrative, dialect numbers and impersonations were done with equal grace of expression and charm of manner, which complemented a voice of richly modulated cadences.
Miss Horr also showed extremely good taste in the rendition of encore numbers, these being short and graceful acknowledgments of hearty applause indicative of genuine appreciation of her efforts.
C. E. Reynolds, piano, and his two sons, Will, cornet, and Frank, trombone, furnished the musical program, which in itself would be a guarantee of its excellence to any one who knew these artists. Each number, rendered by them, was done in a truly artistic style, and was received with applause. The young men played solos on their instruments, Mr. Will Reynolds sang two songs in a pleasing manner, Mr. Frank Reynolds played the piano in a duet with his father and also in accompaniment, and everything they did was done well.
The elder Reynolds in his piano accompaniments to several recitations by Miss Horr, demonstrated his artistic sense rare musical judgment and ability as an executant.

Christmas Entertainment.
The entertainment at the East Main street United Brethren church will be held on Christmas night at 7 o'clock. It had been announced for Tuesday before Christmas, but as extra features not in the regular program, were added more time was required. A more complete announcement will be made later.

THIS IS TRUE.
The wise outlay of money is in a permanent home. There the family comes together daily after the stress and storm of life as to a refuge. The possession of a home, however humble, gives one a sense of permanency, of vested rights; awakens public spirit and patriotism and arouses emulation. It is a foundation on which to build, a point from which to advance. Every flower enhances the value of the home and endears it to the heart and memory, hallowed by a tender association, endeared by recollection.

Latest Fashion Notes
A Rich and Elegant Coat.
This coat is almost regal in its magnificence, being developed of heavy corded black novelty cloth. It is made with loose front and back, the revers facing of white peay de soie and fancy black and white striped velvet, and on the sleeves as well as above the narrow ruffles, appear wide bands of handsome tapestry embroidery. Grelots of jet beads also add to the trimmings, and the turn down collar consists of ermine with bands of the same on the sleeves.

Appropos of coats—the latest Eton, the very latest is double breasted. It is cut V-shaped in the neck, V-shaped in the back and there are double lapels, one deeper than the other, all double breasted and stitched with Coriell stitching silk. The sleeves have two capes at the top, and the Eton itself has a full falling below the belt in front, thus suggesting a Directoire. Then there is an Eton which is very nice and which makes a nice winter garment. It is fastened in the back, as so many winter coats are, while the front is laid in folds to below the bust where the Eton is cut off. The shirt-waist in this case is made with a full, baggy effect over the front of the belt.

HOW TO BUY.

THE DOMAIN OF DESPAIR.
That Awful Great Basin Between the Rockies and the Sierras.
There are various kinds and degrees of deserts in this country, but the most utterly hopeless are found in the so called Great Basin between the Rockies and the Sierras. This is a vast region of deserts, with here and there an area where nature in prankish mood seems actually to have made an effort to produce spectacular effects of horror. From the Wasatch mountains to the Sierra Nevada extends a ghastly stretch of territory which is intersected by a series of high mountain ranges running parallel north and south, with valleys between.
A birdseye view of the landscape shows three principal ranges, two of which are known as the Amargosa and Panamint, and between these is Death valley, so called because it is the very abode of death.
Imagine a narrow strip of arid plain shut in between two mighty mountain walls, the peaks stretching up 10,000 feet into a burning sky. The surface of this plain, which is 175 feet below sea level, is a mere crust of salt and alkali, through which a ridden horse breaks up to his knees into a horrid paste than eats both hair and hide.
A gray haze that never lifts makes everything indistinct and puzzling to the view. No vegetation is to be seen save a very scanty sagebrush, with leaves that are not green, but gray, and here and there a sort of cactus that grows to five or six feet in height, with extended branches. It is called the "dead man" because in the night each stalk looks like a corpse by the wayside.
But the supreme horror of the place is the heat, which is unspeakable. There is a breeze, but it is so scorching hot as to blister your face. Streams flow from springs down toward the valley, but never reach it, because the heat dries them up on the way.—Saturday Evening Post.

The Only Exception.
"She's unusually conscientious, you say?"
"Yes, indeed; even in the smallest details of life."
"Able to resist any sort of a temptation?"
"Unquestionably."
"Has she ever been to Europe?"
The champion of woman looked startled.
"Oh, well," he said, "of course, if she had a chance to smuggle a few gowns into the country, why—that's a different matter."—Chicago Post.

The Eyes and the Temper.
There are experts on the eyes who hold stoutly to the theory that troubles in vision often cause serious lapses from a well ordered life among children and that disobedience, ill temper, cruelty, wanton destructiveness and injuries are frequently due among youngsters to aberrations and to ailments which affect the sense of sight. Such a theory may appear to be carried so far as to be almost a fad, yet there may be something in it.

The Anchor.
"Sailors are awful forgetful, aren't they?" asked little Elsie.
"Why, what makes you think that?" inquired her papa.
"Because, every time they leave a place they have to weigh their anchor. If they weren't forgetful, they'd remember the weight!"—Exchange.

A million suffering women have found relief in Wine of Cardui.

that I must do something to regain my health. A friend advocated your Wine of Cardui treatment so strongly that I decided to try it, although I had little faith in patent medicines. I am now very thankful that I did so, for within ten days blessed relief came to me, and in less than three months I was cured, and have enjoyed fine health ever since. I know there is nothing better for a sick woman who wishes to enjoy perfect health and am very pleased to give my hearty endorsement.

No suffering woman can afford to ignore such a letter as Mrs. McDonald writes. Her plans and advice have proved valuable in building up one of the greatest women's organizations in the United States and she takes time to give advice which she knows will help you.

Do not delay in securing this medicine. There is nothing to gain and everything to lose by delay. The choice is before you. Will or will you not secure relief now by taking Wine of Cardui? All druggists sell $1.00 bottles of Wine of Cardui as well as 25c packages of Theodore's Black-Draught.
